LIFE ON THE OCLAN WAVE.

"A life on the Ocean Wave!" The man who wrote it was green; He never had been to sea, And a storm he never has seen.

He never has seen a wave As it deshed o'er the vessel's duck; He never has seen a fire at sea, Or been floating upon a wreck;

He never has been sroused From his marning's gentle doze, By the sound of the splashing water,

As it fell from the horrid hose. He never has heard a mun Serubbing right over his head,

With a noise sufficient to rouse From the grave the slumbering dead. He never las seen a fat woman Growing thinner day by day, And leaning over the vesse l'a side;

Throwing herself away ; While people look carelessly on, Though in trais the woman may be, And unfeelingly say it is nothing at all,

Only the roll of the sea. Ben sick he ne'er has been to his toes,

And crept into bed in his cost, While every cotion increased his threes, And his feelings were all to his throat.

That man may have sailed in a best, In some undd'e, or on a sound, But if he has been to sea, and wrote Such a rong, he deserres to be drown'd.

I got to my cart Second the pediar's story. In the morning He was a short, then set man, somewhere about as a musclessly as I got off, and then according I lead the cornesity to look at his carr, and I forte years of age, and gave evidence of great horse on, still keeping my pisted handy. I found the four tallet holes just us he had tald physical strength. He gave his name as Lemnel Vicey, and his home was in Dover, New 1-hand come to a good hard road, and so I al- cerks.

"Mell, gentlemen," he commenced, knucking he takes from his pipe and putting it in his pocket, "suppose I test you about the last adventure of much consequence that log pened to me? You see I min now right from the Par West, and ou my way home for winter quarters. It was about two months ago, one pleasant eveuing, that I pulled apart the deer of a small vil lage tavern in Harrock county, Indiana. 1 said tiwas pleasant-1 meant two warm, but it was cloudy, and likely to be very dark. I went in and called for support, and laid my horse taken cure of, and after I had eaten I sat down in the bar-toom. It Legan to rain alieu. eight o'clock, and for awhile it poured down good, and it was awtal dark out of does. "Now I wanted to be in Jackson early the next marriag, for I expected a in d of gomini there for me, which I intended to dispose of an my way home. The morn would rise about midnight, and I knew if it did not tain I could get along very comfortably through the mud afier that. So I asked the hardford it he would not see that my house was ted about midnight, as I wished to be off before two. He expressed some surprise at this, and asked me why I did not stop for breakfast. I told him that I had sold my last load all out, and that a new lot of goods was waiting for me at Jackson, and I wanted to be there for them before the expresagent left in the marring. There was a mamber of people siming around while I told this, but I took but little notice of them, one man only artesting my attention. I had in my pussession a small package of placards, which I was to deliver to the sheriff in Jackson, and they were notices for the detection of a natorious rubber usined Dick Hardhead. The hills gave a description of his person, and the man before me answered very well to it. In fact, it was perfect. He was a tall, well formed man, rather slight in frame, and had the appearance of a gentleman, save that his face bore those bard, cruel marks, which an observing man cannot mistake for anything but the index to a villainous disposition.

"When I went up to my chamber I asked the landford who that man was, describing the suspicious individual. He said he did not know him. He had come there that alternam, and intended to leave sometime during the next day. The bost asked me why I wished to know-if I was ever acquainted with him. 1 resolved not to let the Landlord into the secret, but to hurry on to Jackson, and there give information to the sheriff, and perhaps he might reach the inn before the villain left; for I had no doubts with regard to his identity.

"I had an alarm watch, and having set it to give the alarm at one o'clock, I went to sleep .-I was aroused at the proper time, and immedia cly got up and dressed myself. When I ruched the yard, I found the cloud all passed away, and the moon was shining brightly. The hostler was easily aroused, and by two o'clock, I was on the road. The mud was deep and my horse could not travel very fact-yet it occurred to me the beast made more work than there wis any need of, for the cart was nearly empty.

"However, on we went, and in the course of half an hour I was clear of the village. At a short distance aliend by a large tract of forcet, mostly of great pines. The mad lead di rectly through this wood, and as well as I could remember, the distance was about twelve, miles. Yet the moon was in the east, and as bis road ran nearly west, I should have light anough. I had entered the wood, and had gone al out half a mile when my wagon wheele set led, with a bump and jerk, into a deep hole .-I uttered an exclamation of astonishment; but hat was not ali. I heard another exclamation

As the hind wheels came up, I felt something beside the him. jerk of the hole. I heard something tumble from one side to the other of my wagon, and I could also feel the jar occasioned by the movement. It was simply a mau in my cart. I knew this on the instant. Of course I felt puz zled. At first I imagined some pour fellow had taken this method to obtain a tide; but soon . gave this up, for I knew any decent man would, all to them. After this I got one of them to run up with: have asked me for a ride. My next idea was and route out the sheriff, and tell what I be-

These are two of the men who call upon the old-line Whigs to join with them in re-organizing. If all who were at the Lexington meeting were known for their political integrity, as is Hon. J. F .Brzt, and a few others we might name, the effort to re-organize the Whig party would be vastly more respected, and the honesty of the leaders in the movement never called in question. But such a po-

An anti-American orater, down at New Ha ven, the other day, stated that every Irish, or other pauper, that came to the United States, country,-morally, materially, and physically. We have a striking corroboration of this novel truth, at hand, in the following statistics, taken from the books of the Recorder's Court, at St. Louis, vouched for as true and reliable in every particular:

Total number of arrests made by the Day l'olice from July 17th, to March 1st, 1856.

Of which there were: Irisb, Germans, Americans All other nations,

Total number of arrests made by the Night Police from April 16th, 1856, to March 151, 1856. Of which there were: Irish. Gennaus.

Americans, Negroes. All other nations. Total number of arrests. 3,234 Total number of Foreigners arrested 3,234 We sincerely commend these suggestive statisties to the Illbernian orator, above alluded to. He should study them out,—and lay them to heart! They will help him to wonderfully illustrate his next lecture, on the Blessings of Pauperism, -and impress the American heart, with renewed gratitude, to the European gov ernments, for sending over to us, so much intelligence, morality, patriotism, and the like!—N It will be seen from the above that the number of foreigners arrested in St. Louis in less than a year, was greater than the Sag-Nicht majority in the recent election -an election that has been heralded over the South as a Democeatic triumph over the American and over the North as a Black Republican triumph over Americanism !- Exchange.
